Dear Josh:

My failure to answer your letter of June 12 is not due to lack of interest, but to the necessity of clearing my desk of many things that accumulated during my three weeks in Italy. I am still by no means through, but I did not want to delay any longer letting you know how pleased I was with your response to my letter of June 4. Since I have gotten rather rusty about these data, it will take me a little time to dig through my files and find out what is really there and what you ought to know about it. So, I will have to postpone giving you that information until I can get through what I must do today and tomorrow and the days immediately following. However, I don't think that the delay will be serious, because after all these data have been sitting there for quite a long time now and a little time more or less will not make a great difference. I shall, however, get at the matter as soon as I can find the time, and when I do will communicate with you further about it.

Meanwhile, all warmest and best wishes to you,

As ever,

Tracy
